Words and music by Donny Douglas

Intro G A7 C F G x 2

Verse

G A7

Kissing her goodbye now, the evenings gone

C F G

You tried to save it went her love was gone

G A7

Lying all alone, the sheets so cold

C F G

You're waking up to how you were bought and sold

Pre-chorus

G F C G

And it, seemed so right to you, seemed so right to you.....

F C G

You would never see, couldn't ever see the truth

1st Chorus

D Am G

While you dreamed of the future she was tormented by the past,

D Am G

She never really left her lover and never love would last

Am G D

So while you sat there asking her “did she feel the same as you?”

All you did was make her mind up, to what she had to do

Trying to make a contact, through some old friend,

It seems the only way to make amends

Lying all alone, tears in your eyes

You remember telling her there would be no ties

G F C G

But it, was so right for you, seemed so right for you.....

F C G

She could never see, e-ven-tu-ally she'd love

D Am G

You saw a bright horizon but the clouds were overhead,

D Am G

Hoped she feel the same way but her love's already dead

Am G D

So now you're lying all alone, tears in your eyes

Am G D

Staring at the telephone, constructing worthless lies

1st Chorus repeats to end

D Am G

While you dreamed of the future she was tormented by the past,

D Am G

She never really left her lover and never love would last

Am G D

So while you sat there asking her “did she feel the same as you?”

Am G D

All you did was make her mind up, to what she had to do
